DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 12/05/06 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive in regards to claim 54 and 56. The applicant amended the claim to include spaces between the defined nodes. It is unclear to the examiner how nodes can be formed, without spaces between. Secondly as shown in the drawing below, the examiner points arrows to where the nodes would be form from the cotton yarn 3 swelling upon exposure to water. As seen below, there are spaces between those points.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 57-60 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The applicant fails to disclose how the fabric formed or mechanically manipulated that would allow nodes would be formed on one surface of the garment, due to the exposure to water, and the second surface staying substantially planer.

Claims 57-60 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The applicant fails to teach the nodes being formed on one surface of the modified structure with the second surface being substantially flat.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 54 and 56 are rejected as best understood under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Imamichi (US 4,267,710). Imamichi discloses (abstract) a double-knit fabric composed of polyester and cotton fibers. The cotton yarn has a first degree of water absorbency and a first degree of dimensional-transformation upon exposure to water. The synthetic fibers have a second degree of water absorbency and a second degree of dimensional-transformation upon exposure to water. The fabric is a double knit as stated above, thus is mechanically manipulated. Fig. 3 shows the cotton yarn 3 to the rear of the synthetic yarns 1 and 2. Cotton is a fiber that is hydrophilic which means it absorbs water, which causes the diameter of the fiber to grow. When the water exposed to it, the hydrophilic yarn (cotton) would absorb water, thus increasing in size as stated above. This reaction modifies the first structure of the fabric to a second when exposed to water as claimed. The increased diameter of the cotton yarn would "project" nodes onto the surface of the fabric, as the cotton yarns would be larger in diameter thus pushing the synthetic yarns outward creating nodes. Both the natural and synthetic fibers contribute into the node formation. As discussed above, Imamichi would have spaces between the nodes. Imamichi states in Col. 2 lines 38-40, "invention may be advantageously sewn into various sport wear such as shirts..."
